During four pivotal epidemics, your choices will determine the fate of the world. During the outbreak of the "Black Death" in 1347, travelers and merchants bring death to far-off lands. The devastation marks a turning point in the history of Florence, where cosmopolitan merchants and workmen mingled during the Renaissance. During the Civil War and the American Great Migration, tensions escalate between Northern and Southern America. This era of racial tensions and economic chaos culminated in the influenza pandemic of 1918, which swept across the United States and Europe. During the Spanish Flu pandemic of 1919, the world breaks down as an infected general orders the American military to execute members of the American Expeditionary Force. Racial tensions run high and the world appears to be in a cold war. These events and other epidemics coalesce to form a plotline about the human response to epidemics. Your decisions, and the others you encounter, decide whether the world's population survives. Choose Your Own Adventure Telling the story of four different cities by exploring the streets, you will witness and engage in crucial conversations that will impact those around you, as well as yourself. Every action you make, every conversation you have with the locals, as well as things like fighting against supernatural monsters, affects the storyline. Four Cities, Four Epidemic Episodes Athens The Plague of 430 BCE: After worshipping the Egyptian god, the gods and citizens of Athens become horrified by the cult's involvement with the plague. The cult is destroyed by the Athenians. Marseille The Plague of 822: A plague in Marseille has devastated the population, and after the ship Grand-Saint-Antoine returns from a trade mission to India, the captain of the ship has the plague. Dr. Leeson travels to the town and is able to contain the virus. Philadelphia The Great Panic of 1918: William Cochran finds a person who has the flu and has died. Dr. Larkin informs him he has the influenza and will be quarantined. Dr. Cochran becomes a widespread super-spreader of the influenza virus. Louisville The Curse of the 4th Street Races: A race riot of rioters led by a racist Army general erupts. This event sparks the influenza outbreak which becomes the biggest crisis in the world.
